GRAPHIC DESIGNER

TO THE PLANNED PARENTHOOD HIRING TEAM:

This is my dream job. You may hear that a lot, but after 10+ years in the design realm, I can say it with assurance.

I am a fast paced, hard working, detail oriented, multi-tasker, with the ability to work well under pressure and in a fast-paced environment. Enough buzz words for you? But, really, I am the kind of person you want to have around. Because every job I do, I go out there to do the best I can.

I've worked tight deadlines and with large volume. I've campaigns that needed to be done in a day, and ones that take months to create. I've worked with clients I love and clients I abhor. But my passion for design drives me to ensure that no matter what the client or product, I do my absolute best.

I grew up with 9 siblings and a single mother so I'm used to doing a little with lot. And between my siblings and my political and affiliate marketing clients, I can work with just about anyone and any personality. It also means that I can thrive in both group situations, and know how to self-motivate and work with little direction. (Ten kids, one mom who worked full time, you can guess how often anyone checked to make sure I was doing my homework. Good thing I was always an A student who loved school.)

I learn fast. I'm used to being a "jack-of-all-trades." And even when I get something wrong, I don't give up. I keep trying till I get it right. Over the years I've been slotted in to fill the gaps in numerous projects, taking on new duties and learning new skills. Anything to ensure the job gets done. The world of design is constantly evolving and because of that, I've learned I have to constantly evolve as well.

As for planned parenthood specifically... well, taking on the responsibility for caring my niece and nephew meant that I had to take the jobs that paid enough to support them on a single income, which I'm sure you know, in this day and age, is not an easy task. So, most of my clients were ones I fundamentally disagreed with, we lived in Utah after all... But, you take care of your kids no matter how much you the clients make the rage rise from the pits of your stomach. Consider me well versed in opposition research. But, the kids are now launched. They are out in the world living their best lives. And now I have the luxury of living my best life as well.

I have had the absolute privilege of spending the last two years traveling the world, and currently split my time between New York, Los Angeles, and Utah. And now I am truly blessed to be able to look for a new home where I can genuinely be proud of what I do. Where I can, for the first time, tell people what I do with pride. Planned Parenthood's mission is deeply important to me, and I would consider it a privilege to spend the rest of my career helping to spread its message, boost its engagement and contribute in any way to helping keep its mission alive and thriving.

Looking forward to hearing from you soon,

Jennifer Elliott
